United States District Court,
Northern District of California,

RE: Bernard Parrish et al. v. National Football League Players Inc., et al (C07-0943 WHA)

Dear Judge Alsup:

Since you caught Mr. Katz, Mr. LeClair, and Mr. Adderley during the week of Aug 4, 2009 trying to give away $300+ million of our legal rights to make further recoveries in court from the NFLPA/EA and its other collusive partners who continue to exploit retired NFL players today and every day, I don't want to be represented by Manatt (Ron Katz) or McKool Smith (Lew LeClair) or Herb Adderley any longer. But for your timely surprise intervention they would have sold out all of our legal rights to recover what we have been cheated out of by the NFLPA cabal in future litigation.

We want the damages recalculated using the expert testimony for damage calculations for this case dated May 23, 2008 by Philip Rowley that Mr. Katz did not get entered in time and you disallowed at the final moments during closing arguments. That expert report showed damages to be between $13.2 million and $106.9 million. You allowed the Jury to use a $7.1 million amount as a base for the damages that came from one of the two sets of phony NFLPA books that in-house NFLPA bookkeeper William Garner created for the NFLPA before he left and went to work for Rep. Stenny Hoyer as his in-house bookkeeper. Nobody knows which set of books was used except the defendants who provided that financial information which did not even match the union's LM2 reports as Daniel Rauscher's May 23, 2008 expert report showed. Inaccurate self-serving NFLPA bookkeeping has been documented by experts hired by the Boston Globe all the way back to the 1980's. Allowing the jury to use books and records supplied by the proven cheats at the NFLPA is worse than just unfair to the plaintiffs who won the case. We want the damages recalculated using our expert witnesses Rowley and Rauscher's financial reports.

Thank you for protecting us from the unfair Katz/Adderley claim releases in August. Please complete righting the wrongs inflicted on us by our own legal representatives and protect us from them in the future.

The NFLPA has plenty of money to pay us all of what they owe us in one payment immediately. Richard Berthelsen the author of the "masterpiece of obfuscation" (the GLA) chose to pay Gene Upshaw's estate over $17 million in a single cash payment, then he claims an NFLPA cash shortfall so the NFLPA cannot pay the damages from our case in one payment because of it; while at the same time conspiring with EA to vindictively punish retired players by discontinuing marketing EA's Vintage video games so royalties to retired players will no longer accrue.

Sincerely,
